

Daniel Fegan – Dan Fegan has been involved in commercial aquaculture, mainly in Asia, for 30 years. He has a wide experience of aquaculture operations and has served in a number positions including production and management of shrimp farming operations, aquatic animal health management, consulting and in the aquaculture feed business.

Dan is a past president of both the World Aquaculture Society and the WAS Asian-Pacific Chapter of which he was a founding member. He has been involved in sustainability issues in shrimp culture since the 1990's and was involved with the GAA and ACC in development of the shrimp BAP standards. He has also been active with the WWF dialogues and is a member of the Aquaculture Stewardship Council Technical Advisory Group. Currently Dan is the Aquaculture Regional Technical Manager for Cargill Animal Nutrition in Bangkok, Thailand.